INTRODUCTION

The year 1887 was not unlike the year which had preceded it. Immigration continued and new settlements sprang up all over western and southern Manitoba. Newspapers reflected the growth, and competition for new settlers was soon apparent among the villages. The railway helped to open up new areas, as immigrants could now take the train to their destinations, some of which were at the end of the railway lines that had been built thus far.

Once again, material for this book was obtained by reading all of the 1887 English and French language newspapers available at the Legislative Library. Their collection is most comprehensive and very few issues are missing from any of the newspapers. Staff there is a pleasure to work with.

Since the publication of our last index (1886), the Vital Statistics Agency of Manitoba (VS) has made available online, an index of births more than 100 years old, marriages more than 80 years old and deaths which occurred more than 70 years ago. Some have said that the MGS indexes are now redundant. We believe that this is not the case, for our indexes contain events which occurred outside Manitoba, but which involve Manitoba residents. In addition, many of the births, marriages and deaths from the early years escaped registration by VS because people were not always aware of their obligation to register vital events. Our indexes often point the way to more information in the newspapers than is contained in VS entries. In this way, the two sources complement each other.

Please note that this index contains only information referring to Manitobans or people with connections to Manitobans. However, all classified advertisements of births, marriages and deaths have also been included, even when their relevance to Manitoba is not immediately apparent. We have not included information on deceased royalty, religious notables and the like.

Reading of old newspapers for this index was done by Dan Spurrill and myself. Linda Toews entered all the data onto the computer. Once again we have used the late Gordon Breckman's wonderful design for the cover. Lorne Harris is responsible for the final product. Thanks to all of these people for their efforts on behalf of MGS.

SKETCH MAP

designed to show the successive increases in area of the Province and also the Hudson's Bay Railway (from The Pas to Churchill) and the branch lines to Flin Flon and Cold Lake now in operation. No other railway lines are shewn, and the only place names on the sketch map, which is necessarily small, are those that without crowding it will serve its purpose by making the location of the successive boundary lines plain at a glance.
